Suggested Courses After Completion

The Suggested courses section helps Teachers guide Students toward relevant learning after they complete a course.

Teachers can manually choose the courses to recommend. If no courses are selected, Course Completion Page can automatically suggest up to three visible courses from the same course category.

Manually select suggested courses

Use the Suggested courses field in the course settings to select specific courses.

This is useful when there is a defined next step, such as:

Beginner course → Intermediate course → Advanced course

The selected courses are shown as course cards in the What's Next? section of the completion page.

Automatic same-category suggestions

If no courses are selected manually, the plugin can automatically show up to three visible courses from the same category as the completed course.

This provides useful recommendations without requiring Teachers to configure them for every course.

Manually selected courses take priority over automatic suggestions.

What Students see

Suggested courses appear as course cards with information about the recommended course and an action to continue.

The action depends on whether the Student already has access to that course.

- Student already has access - If the Student is already enrolled or otherwise has access, the course action takes them directly to the course.
- Student does not have access - If the Student is not enrolled, selecting the suggested course takes them to the normal Moodle course enrollment page.

Enrollment itself continues to be handled by Moodle and the enrollment methods configured for that course.

When is the section hidden?

The Suggested courses section is not shown when:

- The section is disabled
- No manually selected courses are available
- No suitable visible courses are available from the same category

Course Completion Page does not display an empty suggested courses section.

Choosing useful recommendations

Suggested courses work best when they provide a logical continuation of the completed course.

For example, recommendations can point Students toward a more advanced course, the next stage of a learning pathway, or another course covering a related topic.
